Amelia Earhart Buys New Dress to Attend Party

Trans-Atlantic Flier Is Warmly Greeted in London

WOMAN IS PRAISED

Ambassador Mellon and Sir John Simon Praise Mrs. Putnam

LONDON.—(AP)—Amelia Earhart, first woman to fly the Atlantic ocean alone, bought herself a new wardrobe Monday to wear instead of her flying togs to a luncheon, given by the Institute of Journalists and attended by Ambassador Mellon and Sir John Simon, foreign secretary. The assemblage cheered heartily as she John congratulated the flier, who water responded with a toast to the president of the United States and to the King.

Ambassador Mellon, seated at her side performed the same ceremony with whisky and soda.

Mellon praised the flier warmly and Sir John said that Britain and America were never closer together, as demonstrated by the flier's remarkable time in her ocean hop.

Police Deny Nurse Made 'Confession'

Efforts to Reach Betty Gow at the Lindbergh Home Fruitless

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Rumors that Betty Gow, nurse to the murdered baby son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, had made an "important statement" "admitting" "unrevealed information relating to the kidnapping were denied officially by the New Jersey police Sunday.

In his afternoon bulletin on the investigation, Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, state superintendent of police, said:

"There is no truth to the statement that Betty Gow has confessed or has admitted any implication in the crime."

Efforts to get in touch with the Lindbergh home where Miss Gow has remained virtually in seclusion ever since the night of the kidnapping, on March 1 were—as usual—fruitless. Just how, or where the report originated or to whom the statement was supposed to have been made nobody in authority seemed to know. Troopers concerned in the case were inclined to dismiss it merely as "just another one of those rumors."

Colonel Schwarzkopf devoted another paragraph of his bulletin to an effort to minimize the importance which he and his aides are reported to be attaching to the endeavor to induce the Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, Norfolk associate of John Hughes Curtis, in the supposed ransom negotiations which the boat builder now confesses were faked, to come to New Jersey for questioning.

The clergyman thus far has refused to enter the state for examination. At first he pleaded that the trip would be too expensive. When the police offered him whatever bills he might incur on the trip, he balked outright and said that he had no intention of coming either to Trenton or Hopewell but instead he was willing to answer any questions that any representative of the police would send to Norfolk might have to ask him.

In reply to inquiries as to the latest status of the parley, Colonel Schwarzkopf said via his bulletin:

"Mr. Peacock is considered insignificant as far as the investigation is concerned."

Whether this means that negotiations with the clergyman have been dropped or whether the police have abandoned hope of obtaining the information they lately thought so important from him, Colonel Schwarzkopf did not say.

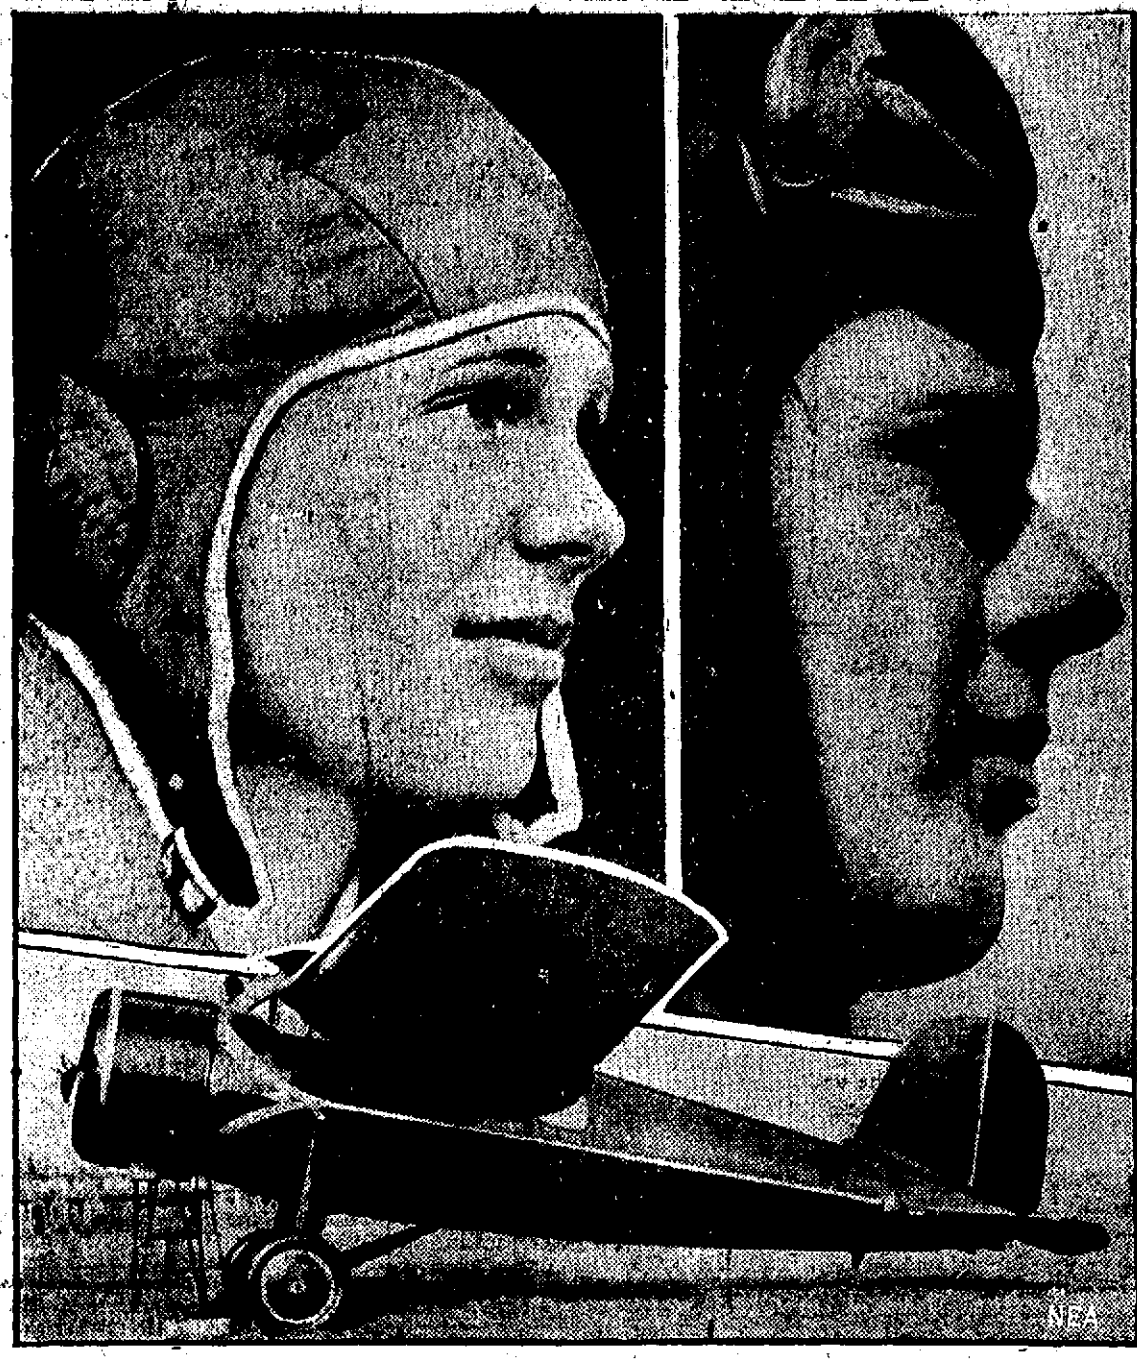

Curtis had a talk with his lawyer in jail at Flemington, N. J., Sunday but neither had anything for publication on what took place.

Here in the Bronx, Dr. J. F. Condon, the "Jaisie" of the piece, back from his week-end "mystery trip" to New England, spent the day in routine fashion, attending mass in the morning, going to a local ball game in the afternoon and jolling about the porch of his Decatur avenue home reading the Sunday newspapers for hours between times. He had nothing for the press on his trip, railing at reporters that the newspapers were "interfering with the wheels of justice" by spying on him.

Nephew of Former President Wilson Dies

"Lady Lindbergh" Conquers Atlantic

Hope Youth Is Honored in College

L. C. Helms, Jr., Elected Captain at North Carolina College

L. C. (Pete) Helms, Jr., has recently been elected as a cadet captain in the R. O. T. C. of North Carolina State College, at Raleigh, North Carolina, according to a message received by his parents here.

Helms will complete his first year at the North Carolina school with the closing of this term.

He is a graduate of the Hope High School, finishing with the class of 1928. He spent two years at the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville.

Two other Hempstead county youths, Bruce McRae of Hope, and James Stingley of Washington, are students in the school at Raleigh. J. T. Nelson, Jr., of Ozan, is one of the instructors.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS

The girl who is easy to look at, is seldom seen on a blind date.

"Gamest Girl in Air"—That's Amelia Earhart

Veteran Pilots Attest to Dauntless Spirit of Woman Ocean Flier Sets Goal Nearly Four Years Ago to Conquer Atlantic, Which She Did Last Week

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Ever since she flew the Atlantic with Wilmer Stultz and Lew Gordon in 1928, Amelia Earhart has had her mind on being the first woman to pilot a plane across the ocean alone.

Seasoned fliers call her the gamest girl in the air. They say that when she determines to do a thing there's no stopping her.

Her husband, George Palmer Putnam, the publisher, has said pretty much the same thing on occasions. He was her manager when she made that memorable hop to Wales in the monoplane Friendship. Ever since their marriage, little more than a year ago, she has been adventuring in the air.

Her resemblance to Lindbergh has been commented on many times. Her take-off on the first leg of her trans-Atlantic hop was without ballyhoo, a decisive, surprising and defiant gesture recalling the Lindbergh flight.

Much of Miss Earhart's time in the last two years has been devoted to promoting aviation. In May, last year, she took off on a coast-to-coast flight in an autogyro to demonstrate the worthlessness of that type of ship. A crack-up in Abilene, Texas, could not stop her. She was back at Newark airport in another ship ten days later, ready for further adventures in the air.

Her statement just prior to her 1928 crossing is characteristic of her daring. She said the only stake she hoped to win by the flight was "the privilege of flying and the pleasure of having a hand in a fine adventure."

Miss Earhart was born in Atchison, Kansas, in 1898. She is a college woman, and has been much interested in social welfare work.

Two-Job Holders Are Befriended by Atty.-Gen. Norwood

Legal Advisor of State Stricken Dumb by Quarles' Accusation

SOLONS DRAW FEES

11 Senators and Representatives Enjoy State Appointments

LITTLE ROCK.—While the Highway Audit Commission prepared to resume hearings over the week-end, with Justice Matthews scheduled to tell his side of the story about Park Hill and other Little Rock subdivisions next Wednesday, public interest shifted to the office of Attorney General Hal Norwood.

Mr. Norwood was assailed by Senator John M. Quarles of Helena for his failure to take action against eleven senators and representatives who are acting as liquidating agents for defunct banks, in violation of state law.

Norwood Is Silent

The attorney general ignored the assault. Senator Quarles had written him a letter and verified its receipt at the attorney general's office with the aid of a notary public.

The letter charging that Mr. Norwood was bound under the law to action against elective officials to recover the amount of salaries and fees illegally drawn while serving in two capacities under the state government, read in part as follows:

"In conformity with the powers and duties of your office as defined in Chap. 178 Sec. 10328 and elsewhere in Crawford & Moses Digest, I ask you to bring suit or action against the violators of Article 5, Section 10 of the constitution of the state of Arkansas and any or all other statutory laws governing."

List of Violators

"From state and other records it is of proof the following named persons are such violators:

"Senators C. R. Counts, Elmo Chaney, Roy Millum, C. L. Poole, J. L. Shaver, Ned Stewart, Paul Ward and Lawrence E. Wilson; Representatives F. N. Burke, W. B. Graham and W. E. Pruitt, and any and all others who may be violators of the constitution or of certain statutory laws."

"I ask and demand that you proceed at once in action against these violators; looking to the recovery of certain moneys paid them from state department funds, and a restoration to those departments of all sums of money so recovered."

"You are well aware of the illegality of state officers being paid from two separate departments or subdivisions of state for two separate and distinct services."

"The law is specific and no state officer may function legally in but one department, whether as head or deputy, in any capacity as a head, deputy, clerk or attorney in any other department, auxiliary, co-related or subdivision thereof at one and the same time over any period, appointive or otherwise, of any state department."

Congress to Stay On Tax Bill Job

Will Ignore Conventions Unless Budget Balanced, Say Leaders

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Senate leaders Saturday called for continuous sessions of Congress through the political conventions to drive through the budget balancing revenue bill before the state of the government's new year on July 1. The demand came as the third day of debate over the tariff items in the tax measure brought no end in sight and left filibuster signs still flying.

A vote is in prospect Monday on the remaining two import taxes carried by the revenue bill—lumber and copper. The tariff coalition has shown its strength in retaining the oil and coal strength in Illinois and the other two will be kept.

Senators Watson of Indiana and Robinson of Arkansas, Republican and Democratic floor leaders, respectively, both issued statements Saturday night that no adjournment or recess for the conventions would be considered until the tax and appropriation measures are enacted, assuring the government's credit for the new year.

Earlier in the day Senators Reed of Pennsylvania and Moses of New Hampshire, both of whom had been expected to take leading parts in next month's Republican National Convention, issued a joint statement announcing they would stay at the capitol to finish the job.

It's All in a Fireman's Day

Flames leaped and crackled, and firemen, precariously suspended on a ladder above the blaze, fought valiantly to prevent its spread through Raymond Hall, a Georgia College dormitory at Lakewood, N. J. But when the fire had run its course, the famous Gould chimneys—brought from Westminster—had been destroyed. The school is on the former estate of George J. Gould, railroad pioneer.

State Airports To Be Inspected

LITTLE ROCK.—An inspection tour of all the airports in Arkansas, planned by Maj. J. Carroll Cope for last week, but postponed because of his participation in the observance of National Cotton Week was started Monday morning, the major announced Sunday night. Besides inspecting the airports, Major Cope, who is state director of aeronautics, will check the licenses of airplanes and pilots.

Upon arrival at Batesville, probably Tuesday afternoon, Major Cope will accompany a party of business men and government officials on a short trip up the White river on a government barge.

The tentative itinerary for the inspection tour follows: Louisville, Fordyce, El Dorado, Hamburg-Crossett, Pine Bluff, St. Charles, Helena, Augusta, Newport Batesville, Heber Springs, Fayetteville, Fort Smith, Hot Springs, Texarkana, Hope, Prescott and Arkadelphia.

185 From Hope on Excursion to L. R.

Many Spend Sunday in Little Rock in Double-Header Ball Game

Hope's business district was treated to a spectacle of boom activity early Sunday morning when 185 people boarded a Missouri Pacific excursion train to Little Rock, which passed through here at 8:35 a. m. The excursion, widely advertised here during the past week, offered a round-trip ticket to the capital city for $1. The principal attraction there was a double-header baseball game between the Arkansas Travelers and Birmingham.

The train of ten coaches was well filled when it left Hope, for 430 excursionists had boarded the train at Texarkana. Between this point and Gurdon 101 more crowded onto the train, including 20 at Prescott.

The Camden-Eldorado division excursion had 661 excursionists when it reached Gurdon, but was ordered to add extra coaches, and to care for the customers on the remainder of the run. An early morning excursion left Hot Springs, and all other division points on the Missouri Pacific, bound for the capital city.

The Hope and Texarkana excursion train returned Sunday night at 10:30 p. m.

Financial Trouble Responsible For Deed of H. S. Hunt

Veteran Saw Mill Man Takes Own Life at the Family Residence

DEATH IS INSTANT

Funeral Arrangements Not Announced Late Monday Afternoon

A. S. Hunt, aged 54, lumber dealer and saw mill operator, was today shot to death in his home on South Fulton street at 11:20 o'clock Monday morning. It was evident that he committed suicide. A small caliber pistol lay by his side, which had exploded once.

He was found lying on the floor of his bedroom by his wife and a brother, Bud Hunt. Mrs. Hunt was said to be in an adjacent room, and Bud near the house at the time of the shooting. They heard the shot and the sound when Mr. Hunt fell to the floor. The bullet entered his skull below the right ear, and lodged in the brain. Death was instantaneous.

Brooding over financial troubles and ill health were said to have been the possible causes for his act. He is survived by his widow, and ten children, who are Mrs. Garland Mullens; Mrs. Robert Jones; Mrs. Fred Russell all of Hope; Mrs. Roy Mullens of Hope route 1; Mrs. Perry Johnson of Hope route 1; Percy Hunt of Longview, Texas and Stewart, Charles Chester and Catherine Hunt all at home.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

New Record Set In Cotton Export

April Exceeds Same Month Since 1921-1922 Except 1926-1927

MEMPHIS.—(U. S. Dept. Agriculture)—The cotton market during the period May 14 to 20 continued quiet with prices the end of the week about 3.16c higher than those at close of the previous one.

Both foreign and domestic demand for spot cotton was stated as very limited with spot transaction confined mostly on the medium white and the ment. Inquiries seemed to be centered mostly on the medium white and the lower grades in lengths 7-8 inch and 15-16 inch.

According to the Weather Bureau the past week generally speaking was rather unfavorable for cotton. Warmer weather is needed in most sections and moisture is deficient in many places in the eastern half of the belt. Average price middling ten markets May 20th 5.54c compared with 5.34c May 13th and 5.54c on corresponding day previous season.

According to the Bureau of the Census domestic consumption for April amounted to 367,280 bales, a decrease of 121,000 or 25 per cent compared with March and 142,000 bales or 28 per cent less than in April a year ago. Consumption for the nine months ending April 30 this season amounted to 3,900,000 bales against the like quantity for the same period last season.

Exports during April, according to the Department of Commerce, were at the highest levels for the same month since 1921-22, with the exception of 1926-27 and were 39 per cent larger than in April a year ago, and 59 per cent larger than April two years ago. Total exports to May 28th this season amounted to about 7,700,000 bales against 6,200,000 a year ago.

Do-X Completes Atlantic Voyage

Giant Seaplane Descends at Vigo, Spain, From Azores

VIGO, Spain.—(AP)—The 12-motor flying boat DO-X dropped here Sunday night at 7:40 p. m. (1:40 p. m. Hope time) for an overnight stop on its flight from the United States to Lake Constance, Switzerland.

The German seaplane was greeted by huge Sunday crowds as she circled the city several times before alighting in the harbor.

The ship made the fourth leg of its homeward flight from Horta, Azores, in 40 minutes less than 12 hours, having left there at 6:20 a. m. Azores time (2:20 Central Standard time). Many persons in small boats were permitted to inspect the craft as it lay in the harbor for the last projected leg of its flight. Fuel had been ready since Saturday, and was taken out to be put aboard during the evening.

Leniency for Mr. Banks

A LOT of people aren't going to like this editorial. But if they want to be fair, they will read it clear through.

A. B. Banks, former head of a defunct chain of Arkansas banking houses, who was convicted and sentenced to a year's imprisonment, received a stay of sentence Saturday from Governor Parnell.

Most people probably think Mr. Banks ought to go to jail. But then, most people think anybody who has cost them money ought to go to jail. They never stop to think whether they haven't aided and abetted the other fellow in his shortcomings, and thus made themselves a party to his disaster.

It is my contention that Mr. Banks no more deserves to go to jail for being an aged and bankrupt banker, than the people and their legislatures do, for permitting over a period of twenty years those business practices which eventually brought about collapse.

After all, when Mr. Banks was permitted to exchange insurance money for bank stock and carry on a more aggressive and liberal banking business than was perhaps wise, he converted a part of those benefits to the thousands of customers whom he dealt with at forty-seven individual banking houses. They shared with him in prosperity—and also disaster.

One of his banking houses was in Hope. Its failure left a deep mark upon this county. And yet, had it not been for Mr. Banks, so I am told, that bank wouldn't have been there at all. It had suspended several years before, when owned by local people. Everybody seemed to want it opened again—then wanted it opened so badly that they didn't care who opened it. And Mr. Banks opened it—on his own terms.

That's how he happened to have forty-seven banks—picking them up one at a time under circumstances very much like those in Hope. The question as to how a man could make forty-seven banks go, when local capital had failed to make each individual bank go, was answered by Mr. Banks' organization as being "the old man's genius"—but outside the Banks organization, and particularly in rival bankers' camps, there was a strong suspicion that without his insurance companies Mr. Banks would shortly be out of the banking business also. And that came to pass.

Now as regards the case of the People Vs. Mr. Banks, I want to quote from an editorial I wrote on this page January 10, 1931, just after the bank failures and just before the regular session of the legislature that year:

"So far as the banking and insurance laws may have been responsible for our recent disastrous history, the combination of insurance and banking houses under the management of Mr. Banks was common knowledge to the bankers and newspapers of Arkansas—and so well known to the legislature that an attempted 'take-down' of Mr. Banks was rumored to be a feature of every session."

The old facts are that while Mr. Banks was president of forty-seven banks and three insurance companies, a millionaire and a power in state politics, none dared attack him—and for the legislature to gloat over this bankrupt now without conducting a thorough examination of office-holders inside the state government, would be received with suspicion and disgust by the people.

Was any such examination ever made? It took three sessions of the legislature to get one satisfactory audit bill passed for the highway department, and there never was any examination of the insurance and banking departments.

To illustrate the sort of cowardice in high office which permitted the A. B. Banks disaster and prohibits the people from having any moral right to imprison him now, I only need to point out to you two items on the front page of Sunday's newspapers.

A concurrent resolution of the last special session of the legislature called upon the banking commissioner to provide a statement of the liquidating costs of closed Arkansas banks. When Senator DuVall Purkins, author of the resolution, demanded the information which it called for, the governor's secretary, Guy A. Freeling, said he had neglected to have the governor sign it—and the resolution was therefore void.

Furthermore, everybody knows that there are eleven members of the house and senate who are serving as liquidating agents for closed banks, in absolute defiance of law, which says no state officer may serve in two capacities under pay.

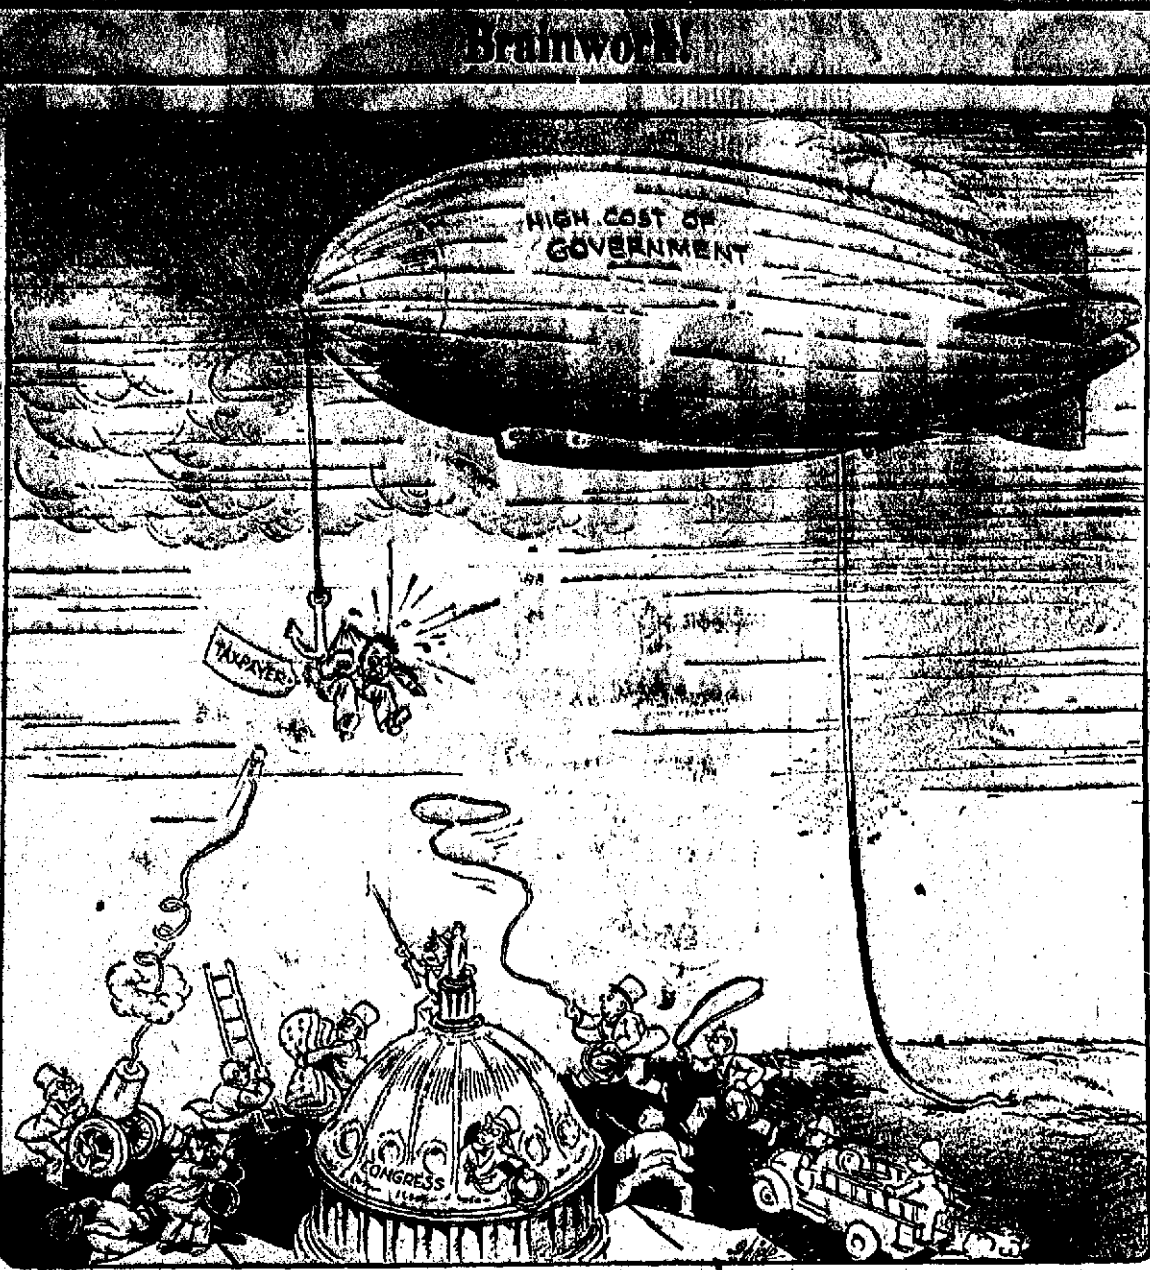

Yet when Senator John M. Quarles went to Attorney General Hal Norwood and asked him to remove these law-breakers from office, the attorney general, far from taking any action, hadn't even the courage to make a public statement.

How do you expect to be made safe from experiences like the A. B. Banks & Co. failure so long as your elective officers are too busy looking for fat fees and extra salaries to take care of the public's interest?

Putting Mr. Banks in jail won't help.

Putting a large number out of public office will help.

Hal Norwood is one. By all odds he is the sorriest attorney general in recent years—and unless he has the guts to take action against these dual office-holders, now that Senator Quarles has driven him into corner, he is going to get a fancy facing when his name comes up in August for a third term.

Five U.S. Aviators Pass 10,000-Hour Mark in Air

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Of a total of nearly 7,000 licensed transport pilots in the United States, only five have flown more than 10,000 hours.

The five include E. Hamilton Lee, Omaha, Neb., who is known as the dean of air mail pilots; James H. Knight, Chicago; Clyde Pangborn, Wenatchee, Wash., who flew around the world last year with Hugh Herndon; Ralph F. Thomas, Akron, Ohio; and Edwin K. Jaquith, New York.

A study of the flying by transport pilots in 1931, made by the aeronautics branch of the commerce department, showed that they spent a combined total of 1,558,515 hours in the air.

BATON ROUGE, La.—(AP)—Capt. Lawrence "Biff" Jones, head football coach at Louisiana State university, thinks it's a long time between spring practice and fall play and consequently is giving his boys plenty of football facts to mull over during the vacation months.

Spring practice was completed weeks ago, but Jones has had his candidates out for rehearsal of the principles he hammered into them earlier in the year relative to the single and double wing back formation he intends to use in the fall.

These rehearsals will continue until the end of the school season.

WALDRON, Ark.—(AP)—Although a half century will have elapsed since the burning of the Scott courthouse, the loss of valuable records still is felt among the abstractors who often-times find it difficult to set down dates and records beyond the year 1882.

Two residents—Mrs. Jim Hamilton and John Ewert—recalled the night 50 years ago when the citizenry was summoned by alarms to see the courthouse in flames. They, as well as many other residents who have since died, on, believed the building was set afire by John Middleton, who is believed to have escaped to join the famous Starr Gang in Oklahoma. Middleton later drowned in the Potomac river.

A man just back from South America says that things are so bad down there that they're offering three birds in the bush for one in the hand.

Piles All Gone

Without Salves or Cutting
Itching, bleeding, protruding piles go quickly and don't come back, if you remove the cause. Bad blood circulation in the hemorrhoidal veins causes piles by making the affected parts weak, flabby, almost dead. Salves and cutting fail because only an internal medicine can actually correct these conditions. Dr. J. S. Leonard, discovered a real internal Pile remedy. After prescribing it for 1,000 patients with success in 900 cases, he named it HEM-ROID. Ward & Son say one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile misery or money back.

the man HUNTERS
BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SUSAN CAREY, secretly in love with BOB DENISE, but angry at ERNEST HEATH, a much older man, suddenly finds herself free. Heath releases her voluntarily, realizing her heart is not his. She tells Bob the news and he agrees to marry her. Heath's father, a broad Smelter, interferes. He tells Susan such a marriage will ruin Bob's life. BOB ACKROYD, society girl, Susan's friend, asks RAY FLEANNOR, a friend, for advice. Ray tells her to follow the dictates of her heart.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLVII

BOB's father left Susan's home confident of triumph. The girl had seemed quite malleable, humble in fact. He rubbed his hands together, smiling softly at the memory of his own eloquence. He had taken exactly the right tone, he felt. Calling the affair "puppy love" had been precise, and yet it had also the shadow of the jocular. The phrase had indicated that he, a man of the world, smiled understandingly at these exhibitions while deploring them.

Although he refused to recognize it the suspicion began to grow in his mind that there had been something not quite noble in his own behavior. Mr. Dunbar liked to think himself noble above all things. But at a glow of complacence had died down he began to remember the pallor of the girl's face and the look in her eyes. He "rugged" impatiently. It was nonsense even to think of it for a moment. Who was she? A mere nobody? As his son's future he must consider not the feelings of an unknown girl.

In this mood he returned to his office. His secretary wondered what had happened to put him in such an irritable humor. It must be Mr. Bob again, she decided, and thought for the thousandth time that it was that a man who was such a power in the world of affairs should be so helpless in the management of his own son.

Dunbar mapped and growled at everyone. Nothing suited him. Late in the afternoon he roared at the quiet, efficient creature who had endured his nagging for 15 years without a cor laint, ordering her to get Miss Ackroyd on the wire. This done, he had lightened and the office staff — thanks. He bustled about like a whirlwind, flinging orders right and left, announcing on the threshold that he was leaving for the day.

The boy would come round it right, the father reflected as he rode home. Lucky it was that he had found out about the affair in time to spoil a hasty marriage. There would be no newspaper talk, no distressing business of annulment. All this was just a little hurry. Most young men went through the same thing.

At the station Dunbar dismissed his own chauffeur who was waiting. "Miss Ackroyd is driving me home," he explained, pointing at the silver gray roadster parked a little ahead of the Dunbar limousine.

DENISE welcomed the captain of finance gaily and charmingly. She looked exotic in her fitted black cloth suit with a swirl of silver fox. The man approved of her. From the tips of her slender shoes to the crown of her Paris hat she was exactly what he would have chosen for a daughter-in-law. He stepped into the car and Denise started the engine.

"What's up, darling?" He smiled at her benignly. He liked her smooth impudence. No one else would have dared to call this old lion "darling."

"It's settled," he told her with complacence. Denise pretended not to understand.

"What is?" she wanted to know.

"Everything we talked about last night."

Denise widened her eyes with flattering amazement. "Who did it?" He preened himself. "Who do you suppose?"

She took one slim gloved hand from the wheel to lay it caressingly on his arm. "Marvelous!" she murmured.

He pretended to growl at her. "Watch the road, young woman, or we'll be in the ditch."

"You know better," pouted Denise. "I can drive in my sleep."

"That's true," he admitted. "You do everything well." They smiled at each other understandingly. Each admired the other's ruthlessness, the ability to take what was wanted with a quick, casual hand. Denise increased the roadster's speed.

"Well, that's that," she said with her tinkling laugh. "Where do we go from here?"

Dunbar quitted his brows. "I thought we'd give him a few hours, maybe a day, to cool off," he said. "Then I'll call him up and tell him he'd better come home."

"Do you know where he is?"

"Of course," the man shrugged.

"I had my secretary call his club today. He's registered there."

"Smart thing," breathed Denise. "After Bob comes back," pursued the father, "I think we'd better settle matters between you and him for good. This nonsense has dragged on long enough. How about a small wedding and then a trip to South America? The boy's been talking about that for some time. He's been restless."

"It suits me," Denise said. She turned the car into the drive and drew up neatly before the door. "You don't want me to drop him a line or anything?" she asked sweetly. The man considered this.

"No, I think perhaps you'd better not," he said. "He's stubborn as a mule sometimes and we'll have to go about this very carefully. In a week's time," he proposed, "Bob will be sailing the high seas with you and will have forgotten he ever had any other plans."

"You clever thing," sighed the girl. "I'll do just as you say." She hummed softly to herself as she drove away. How simple it all was. Then her smile vanished and a little sharp line appeared around the corners of her mouth. The melting sweetness she had exhibited for Mr. Dunbar's benefit was replaced by a look of stony determination. Wouldn't she make Bob pay for all this later! It would be fun, she thought, her lips curling in anticipation, to see him jump when she cracked the whip.

Denise drove like a demon and her smile was not pleasant to see.

In a narrow room furnished agreeably with old English oak a young man was packing a traveling bag. His expression was stern, his eyes intent. He laid out shirts and handkerchiefs with methodical care. On a luggage rack in one corner of the room lay a huge pigskin case initialed in gold. Everything about the place indicated departure. The telephone rang and the young man answered. He frowned, putting his hand over the mouthpiece instinctively as if wishing to gain time.

He said very quietly, "Yes, of course. Any time you say. At one then."

The young man's face was quite expressive as he hung up the receiver, but the message must have been a pleasant one because after a minute or two he began whistling. His task finished, he called the office of the club and asked the porter to come up for his bags. Bob

True worth is in being, not seeming, in doing each day that goes by. Some little good—not in dreaming Of great things to do by and by. For whatever men say in their blind-ness, And spite of the fancies of youth, There's nothing so kindly as kindness, And nothing so royal as truth. We get back our me as we measure— We cannot do wrong and feel right. Nor can we give pain and gain pleasure, For justice avenges each slight. The air for the wing of the sparrow, The bush for the foot of the deer, But always the path that is narrow And straight for the children of men. And good flesh rot in pursuing, Nor gaining of great nor of small, But just in the doing, and doing As we would be done by, is all. —Selected.

Hope Wins Over Dierks Sunday

Three-Base Hit in Ninth by Cook Gives Locals 4 to 3 Lead

Duplicating a feat performed by him one week ago, Wallace Cook, shortstop of the Hope Missouri Pacific baseball team, hit a triple in the ninth inning with two men on base, and won the game between Dierks and Hope at Fair park Sunday afternoon by the score of 4 to 3.

It was a great game for Cook, who hit safely four times, including two long triples, a double and a single. Cook also performed well in a defensive roll, handling the short-stop job in impressive fashion.

One week ago at Dierks the Hope team was tied at 2-all in the ninth inning when Cook came to bat and crashed a triple to left field, scoring two men ahead of him and winning the game.

Velvin pitched a good game for Hope, letting the opposition down with only five hits for the day, and striking out nine men.

Plans for the organization of a Southwest Arkansas league will be discussed at a meeting to be held in Lewisville Tuesday night, manager Coop told The Star Monday.

Two Louisiana teams, Plaindealing and Sarepta, may be included in the league. Other teams that may enter are Hope, Bradley, Taylor, and a team representing both Lewisville and Stamps, combined.

Three Charred Bodies Are Found After Tragic Louisiana Mishap

NATCHITOCHES, La.—(AP)—Three persons were burned to death; two died a few hours later from burns and a sixth was critically injured when an automobile and truck crashed and burned near St. Maurice community, 13 miles south of here, Sunday.

The dead are: W. P. Riddling, Alexandria, mechanical foreman for Rock Island railway and Louisiana and Arkansas railway.

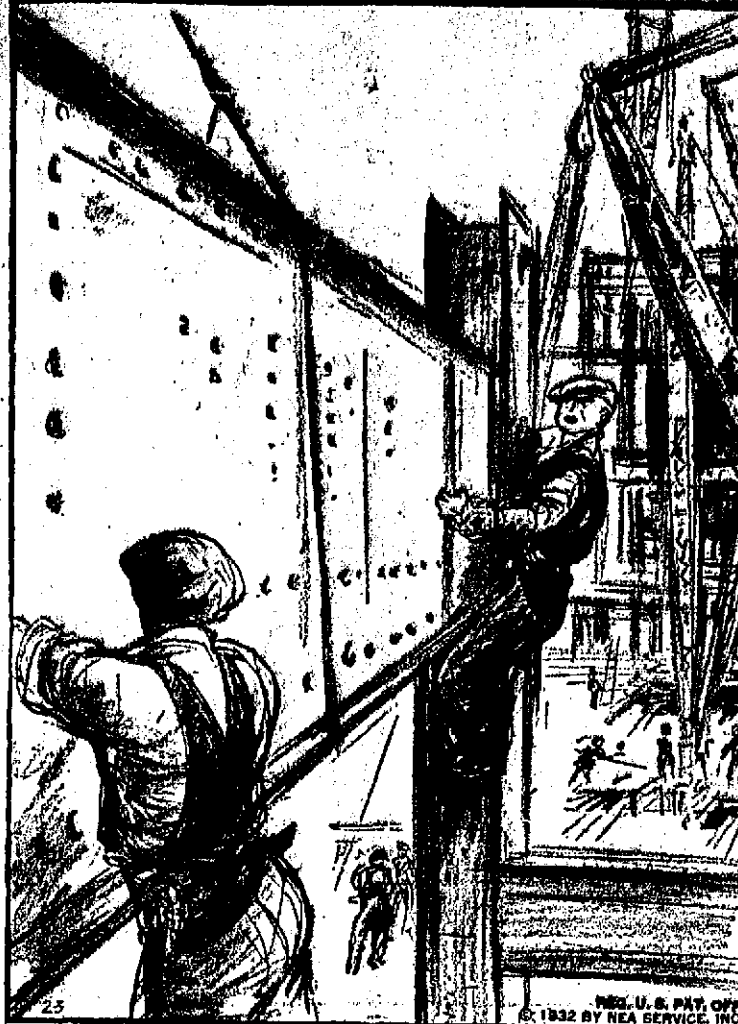

Mrs. W. P. Riddling, Alexandria. Mrs. Bessie Broussard Daniel, Alexandria, a telegraph operator.

Leslie Donaldson, 28, Bossier City.

Carl Adams, 24, Natchitoches.

Donaldson and Adams died in a Natchitoches hospital shortly after the accident.

Riddling, Mrs. Riddling and Mrs. Daniel were so badly burned that it was barely possible to distinguish the forms as human bodies.

According to the story told by the negro Walker, at the hospital, he was driving for Mr. and Mrs. Riddling, who with Mrs. Daniels were en route from their home at Alexandria to Shreveport.

At a bridge, he said, he attempted to pass a truck loaded with sugar, but

Railroad Refuses To Move Vet. Train

More Than 300 Men From Oregon Stopped in Ohio Railroad Yard

EAST ST. LOUIS—(AP)—More than 300 World war veterans, on their way from Portland, Ore., to Washington to urge passage of a bonus bill by Congress, remained "camped" in the Baltimore & Ohio railroad yards here Sunday night, stalemated by refusal of the railroad to move the freight train which they had boarded Sunday for the remainder of their journey.

The freight was scheduled to leave at mid-afternoon. Instead some of the cars were disconnected and shunted back into the train sheds. Refrigerator cars containing perishable food-stuffs were among the 20 cars comprising the train.

Sheriff Jerome Muhs of St. Clair lost control of the car which was struck by the truck.

Both of the machines went into the ditch, the truck over the car and a trailer over all, spilling hundreds of pounds of sugar over the doors. The cars were telescoped together.

Adams and Donaldson were pinned in the truck and Mr. and Mrs. Riddling and Mrs. Daniels were unable to get out of their car. The crash broke the gas tank of the passenger car and the fire cremated Mr. and Mrs. Riddling and Mrs. Daniels.

Walker was thrown clear of the car when it was struck by the truck and was not burned but some part of the car penetrated his body through the left side. Hospital authorities said his chance of recovery was slight.

County, unsuccessfully attempted to persuade the "Red" car expedition to leave the railway company's property. The sheriff said he had talked with Governor Emmerson of Illinois, who promised, he said, to send state militia men here if they should be needed.

As time for departure of the train arrived, members of the "expedition" hoisted their field kitchen equipment aboard the top of a refrigerator car, and the more than 300 men clambered aboard the train.

Officials of the B. & O. railroad stuck to their statements that all regulations, and safety of men riding atop the cars, would prompt them to hold freight trains boarded by the veterans.
